

End Notes

■ James Earl Ray, convicted of murdering Martin Luther King Jr., was released from a Nashville hospital yesterday. Ray, 68, had lapsed into a coma last week. His condition improved, and he has been transferred to a prison hospital. Ray is serving a 99-year sentence for the 1968 shooting death of the civil rights leader.

—Compiled from staff and wire reports
by Dana Hull

The Reliable Source will return after the holidays.

MP 12/31/96